FORMER GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS COMBINE TO FIGHT REGRESION IN CIVIL RIGHTS

Arthur S. Fleming, former Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare announced recently the formation of a citizens commission to analyze and resist the regressive actions taken by the Regan administration and Congress in the area of civil rights.

The Commission, including four former cabinet members, Republicans and Democrats, and six former members of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission contends that the administration and Congress have a defined strategy to do everything possible to weaken or eliminate methods needed to implement laws and court decisions.

Mr. Fleming stated that the initial effort of the Commission would be directed toward a review of the legislation recently passed by the Senate that would preclude the Federal courts from ordering busing to bring about desegregation. He further indicated that future consideration would be devoted to the administration's cutbacks in school aid, the Labor Department's restrictions on affirmative actions in hiring minorities for

SETTING THE EXAMPLE

STUDY SAYS TEEN CRIME NOT FAULT OF BROKEN HOME

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broken homes have little to do with producing juvenile delinquents, a new study said yesterday. But teen-agers who drive or hold jobs run increased risks of having scrapes with police.

Those were among the conclusions in a six-year study supported and made public by the Justice Department.

"The marital status of parents had little relationship to the delinquency behavior of juveniles," according to the researchers.

The study also cast doubt on the popular notion that "employment while in high school deterred delinquency." The researchers said:

"Those who were employed during both the summer and the school year, particularly the males, had somewhat more police contacts and seriousness scores than did others."

The University of Iowa researchers noted that the delinquency rate significantly increases for those who hold their first full-time job at age 17 or earlier.

Driving, the study said, was a key culprit in leading young people into trouble.

"We saw how frequently the automobile got juveniles into trouble with the police and how other behaviors were related to it," the study said.

"It was not an early driver's license 'per se' that resulted in police contacts, but simply having access to the automobile, just as early employment may have exposed some juveniles to greater risk and also given them funds to be spent in a trouble-producing way during the years of socialization," the report noted.

"Age of leaving home failed to have a consistent impact on the number and seriousness of contacts (with police) . . .," the researchers added.

The study, conducted between 1974 and 1980 in Racine, Wis., was financed in part by the Justice Department. Its conclusions do not necessarily reflect the official views of the department.

UNITED STATES BECOMING A MULTI RACIAL NATION

The United States is well on the way to becoming a truly multi-racial nation and its future prospects are directly tied to whether it manages to include its racial minorities in an open, integrated pluralistic society.

Already, one of every five Americans is Black, Hispanic or Asian. By the year 2000, one in four will be members of those groups.

The black population will rise to about 33.5 million people. Hispanics are expected to number about 23 million, and Asians, about 10.6 million. So the America of 2000 will include some 67 million people who will be non-white. That means a non-white population larger than the total current population of such countries as France, Germany and England.

The growth of America's non-whites minorities raises profound questions for the future precisely because those minorities have excluded from full participation and equality in the past and present.

Ths sharp increase in poverty in recent years is also concentrated among minorities. In the past three years well over five million people were added to the numbers of the poor.

A disproportionate number of the "new poor" are black, and the percentage of blacks who are poor has risen to 34.2, while 26.2 percent of Hispanics are poor.

National Urban League Sees Depression In U.S.

John E. Jacob, president of the National Urban League, told 12,000 delegates and representatives at the NUL's recent conference in Los Angeles that America is in the midst of a depression and that Reaganomics has failed to do anything but integrate poverty.

"Now, millions of formerly comfortable middle class White Americans know something of what the Black and Brown poor have had to face for so long," he said.

He called for the national business community to demand that the government provide resources and incentives to help create joint business-community job and training programs.

VETERAN EDUCATOR RESIGNS U.S. POST AFTER 23 YEARS

Preston Valien

The federal government's top Black education expert, 68 year old Dr. Preston Valien, resigned from the Dept. of Education in Washington after almost 23 years of public service. Valien played a major role in program planning, organizational development, and recruitment of services to strengthen Black colleges.

A long respected administrator, Dr. Valien headed task forces that researched and recommended innovative designs for both Howard University's law and dentistry school.

When he was appointed the first Black to head HEW's college and university unit, he was praised as a "distinguished scholar and federal administrator."

A BOOM FOR DISABLED PERSONS

Today, the U.S. Departments of Health Services and Education entered into an interagency agreement with the Washington State Commission for the Blind and the WA. Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to provide unpaid work experence with the federal Government for disabled persons.

The interagency agreement is the first for the State of WA. and is one of few in the nation offering inexperienced handicapped persons an opportunity to obtain much needed work experience which may lead to gainful employment in the public or private sector.

Signing the agreement was Bernard E. Kelly, Regional Director for the Department of Health and Human Services and George Hood, Regional Director for the Department of Education.

SOCIAL SECURITY COLLECTING DEBTS

The Social Security Administration is actively engaged in expanding efforts to collect all debts owed it, Bill Ross, Social Security District Manager in Tacoma, said recently.

A debt to Social Security usually arises when a person receiving retirement, survivor or disability benefits, or supplemental security income (SSI) payments receives more money than is authorized by law.

These debts, or overpayments, generally are caused by the person's failure to report an event that has an effect on the amount of the benefit that is due. These overpayments can amount to may thousands of dollars, Ross said.

Social Security must take action to recover all overpayments. A person is first asked to repay the entire amount of the overpayment. If this is not possible, arrangements can be made to make the repayment over a period of time, either by withholding a portion of the benefit check or by making monthly installments.

More information can be obtained at the Tacoma Social Security Office. The office is located at 1208 So. 10th Street. The toll free number is 1-800-562-6350.

DEADLINE FOR PROPERTY TAXES

Taxpayers of Pierce County have only until October 31 to pay their second half 1982 real and personal property taxes if they wish to avoid interest, according to Sheldon K. Cook, Assessor-Treasurer

Due to budget curtailment, the second half tax statements were mailed with the first half tax statements. Taxpayers who wish to pay their taxes, and have no tax statement, please call 593-4666, or come to the counter of the Assessor-Treasurer's Office. It is necessary to know the parcel number of the property when making a request for a new statement.

EFFECT OF AGENT ORANGE

The Veterans Administration's scientific inquiry into the health related effects of Agent Orange is being enhanced by ten new research projects approved and funded by the agency, VA Administrator Robert P. Nimmo announced.

The administrator said the new projects are supported for up to five years with VA research funds in excess of $2 million, and were selected from proposals submitted by individual investigators working in VA medical centers across the country. The scientists responded to a request for new research proposals issued by VA Medical Research Service which specified a biochemical, physiological or toxicological focus on the delayed effects of exposure to Agent Orange and Agent Blue.

The VA chief pointed out that the projects primarily involve animal studies, but human tissue cultures will be analyzed in some of the experiments. Specific approaches range from behavioral observations of laboratory animals exposed to the defoliants used in Vietnam, to biochimcal studies of fat metabolism.

The VA is now authorized to treat any veteran for certain disabilities which may have been caused by exposure to Agent Orange.

SCHOOL DEMONSTRATION FORESTALLED

The Public School Employees of Washington forestalled a three day transportation demonstration this coming September at the urging of John Stone, Public Employees Action Committee (PEAC) Chairman.

Stone urged the delegats at the 34th Annual Seminar at Pasco, on August 6,7, and 8, not to "disrupt transportation in September. Give PEAC the opportunity to solve the issue of school and transportation funding at the next session of the State Legislature."

PEAC is the political arm of the Public School Employees of Washington. It was formed one year ago and hired Martin J. Durkan and Richard C. Randall to work in the legislative arena. Frank J. Warnke, Executive Director for the Public School Employees of WA. stated after the debate on the resolution, "I believe that the PEAC Committee and employees will have to report to the next Seminar just how successful they have been in solving such a large problem in the light of today's economy."

Newly elected President Reuben Mathews of Prosser, stated that "it will take the hard work of the entire 12,000 members to support the effort of PEAC, but the responsibility to work and convince the Legislators of the seriousness of the problem of school funding now rests with PEAC."

HYPOTHERMIA A NORTHWEST KILLER

Northwest waters are cold waters all year around, and the Coast Guard would like to remind boaters of the ever-present danger of hypothermia. Exposure, as hypothermia used to be called, is the cooling of the body's internal temperature that can lead to unconsciousness and death.

The average water temperature in Puget Sound during the summer is 55°F. At 55°F a fully dressed person has a 50% chance of survival after two and a half hours. People in swimming suits only, have this time reduced to one and a half or two hours. With a life Jacket or other flotation you can increase your expected survival time to four or more hours.

Acute hypothermia will develop within minutes of immersion in these waters. Any physical ±ctivity in the water will dramatically increase this heat loss. Swimming, for example, will increase heat loss by 35% over the heat loss experienced when floating in a life jacket. The widely taught method of drownproofing, which is restful floating with lungs full of air, interrupted every 10-15 seconds for a breath of air, increases the cooling rate by 82% because it requires putting the head into the water. This makes the life jacket your most important tool in survival--but only if you wear it.

Ephesians Chapter 5
1-5

Children obey your parents in the lord: for this is right. Honour thy father and mother; which is the first commandment with promise; That it may be well with thee and thou mayest live long on the earth. And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture(nurture them in the chastening) and admomition of the lord. Servants, be obedient to them that are your masters according to the flesh, with fear and trembling, in singleness of your heart, as unto Christ;

PSALMS 108...

O GOD, my heart is fixed: I will sing and give praise, even with my glory.

I will praise thee, O LORD, among the people: and I will sing praises unto thee among the nations.

For thy mercy is great above the heavens: and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds.

Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth;

That thy beloved may be delivered: save with thy right hand, and answer me.

God hath spoken in his holiness; I will rejoice, I will divide Shechem, and mete out the valley of Succoth.

Love is most everything,
Yet, not quite enough,
To build ones hope upon,
On this disturbing earth.

Love can be wonderful,
And yet, full of pain,
It's not everything,
That one must loose or, gain.

Love is the inner beauty,
That nature has brought about,
Just waiting there to be revealed,
The warmth that one must feel.

Love is a peace of mind,
When all others have failed,
Yet, too much of it,
Will take us to our graves.

Love is not love alone,
That we must hold too,
Faith will keep us strong,
When our days on earth are through.

We welcome news of your church and civic events.

PROSE AND POETIC EXPRESSION OF A BLACK WOMAN

By Marie D. Ransom is a clear acclamation of the freedom of speech that's typical of today's black woman, but her work of prose and poetry is unique in many different ways. Ransom, a young, gifted and vivacious black woman, a native of Marion, South Carolina, a graduate of Morris college, Sumter, S.C. was selected a- moung the MOST OUTSTANDING YOUNG WOMEN IN AMERICA in 1981. Her poetry has appeared in THE MASTER PIECE ANTHOLOGY (1978), COLLEGIAN POETS' ANTHOLOGY (1977), and PIECE OF PROCEPTION (1976).

Ransom is a dynamic author who expresses life so well in the form of prose or poetry. The text includes two chapters which combine reality and fantasie to create a poetic, but true illustration of life and its many wonders. Chapter I entitled "A Black Woan's Expressions" includes such exciting poems as: "I Am," "Scotch ON The Rocks," "No Shame, No Man, No, Sir, Master," "Little Black Boy," and many others. Chapter II, "Is It Fantasie?," includes "The Dreamer," "Some Wonder Young," "Touch Someone Like You," and many more selections that will warm and chill your heart through out this book of prose and poetry.

One has to read the entire selection in order to share the feelings with this poetess. If you have read FOR COLORED GIRLS WHO HAVE CONSIDERED SUICIDE/WHEN THE RAINBOW IS ENUF by Ntozake Shange then it is time to read PROSE AND POETIC EXPRESSIONS OF A BLACK WOMAN by Ransom.

This book is now available at R&M Publishing Company, Inc., P.O. Box 1276, Holly Hill, South Carolina 29059 for $4.95.

The pamphlet tells one all he or she needs to know to become a published author by giving step-by-step procedures and facts on how to pre pare a manutcript for publication; copyright procedures; how to submit your manuscript; how to go about getting it printed; and most importantly how to make a profit from a published book plus much more.

If you have written a manuscript, or plan to write one, don't just think about it, or leave the manuscript you have written stacked away in your closet, or continue to have your manuscript rejected by the big time publishers. Indeed this book is written and dedicated to the unknown writer, and it will show you how to become a published author.

The pamphlet is now available for $2.00 at R&M Publishing Company, Inc., P. O. Box 1276, Holly Hill, S.C. 29571.

IN THE ESTIMATION of God there is no distinction of color; all are one in the color and beauty of servitude to Him. Color is not important; the heart is all-important. It matters not what the exterior may be if the heart is pure. . . .

Blacks March To Celebrate High Court's NAACP Ruling

Celebrating the U.S. Supreme Court decision clearing the NAACP of any financial responsibility in a boycott staged against White merchants in Port Gibson, Miss., from 1966 to 1969, more than 100 Blacks recently marched through the city along the boycott site.

The merchants, who claimed they lost business, had won a $1.25 million state court judgement against the NAACP, the nation's oldest civil rights group. NAACP Executive Director Benjamin Hooks hailed the decision as a "monumental" victory in the struggle for civil rights.

Gov. Tabs New Chief For Mich. Civil Rights Dept.

Despite some criticism, Michigan Gov. William Milliken recently appointed his special assistant on civil rights issues, Ronald Quincy, the new director of the state Department of Civil Rights.

Detractors had questioned the governor's role in the appointment outright and subsequently established a detailed procedure for accepting applications and conducting interviews for the post. Quincy, 31, of Lansing, was appointed to the $49,000-a-year post after receiving a majority vote of the eight-member state civil rights commission in Detroit.

New aide-de-camp

1st Lt. Betty Taylor

"I have some anxiety," said 1st Lt. Betty Taylor, describing her job as MAMC Aide-de-camp, "but that's natural because it's new and I've been in the Army for only one year."

A native of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, Lt. Taylor attended Alabama A & M and received a graduate degree in Counseling at the University of Alabama. One year ago this month, she received her commission. She enjoys music, reading, cooking (or "experimenting," as she said) and sightseeing, but admitted that she hasn't been to Mount Rainier yet.

"The people here at Madigan have been great," said Taylor, "and the atmosphere is nice.

ALPHONSO DEAL, NAACP'S TOP MEMBERSHIP PERSON.

Soliciting almost 2,000 memberships in the NAACP's 1981 national membership campaign earned Philadelphia State Representative Alphonso Deal the NAACP's top spot as membership solicitor. Along with the title goes a week's all-expense-paid trip to London, England.

The prize trip, made possible by the McConald's Corporation, was presented to Mr. Deal at the organization's 73rd Annual Convention membership luncheon in Boston.

Membership is power to the NAACP as votes are power to a politician. Mr. Deal, NAACP membership writer and polititian, understands these truths because he does both effectively. Whereever he goes or whoever he meets, Alphonso Deal will solicit an NAACP membership and voter registration. Thus, he has inspired many NAACP members to follow his example.

HAITIAN REFUGEE

The long awaited release of approximately 2,000 Haitian refugees in Florida is about to begin others will follow.

In compliance with federal judges order, and Immigration and Naturalization spokesman, said "We are going ahead in full force and planning on the release of the Haitians from various facilities around the country.

Volunteer agencies have been set up in facilities at the Krome detention center in Miami to begin interviewing the Haitians for release. The processing will include photographs fingerprints and pertonnal histories of each refugee.

Paul White

Paul White, the new Red Cross director at MAMC, has been here for only three weeks and says he is trying to get a hold on how things run here. It's a new experience working in a hospital this size he added.

Previously he was the Red Cross director of the Berlin Brigade in West Germany.

He estimates that there are approximately 200 volunteers at Madigan, "so we must be doing something right." He believes it's a tribute to the system that it keeps so many volunteers and has an ongoing program. Mr. White says his number one concern is recruiting volunteer caseworkers.

HELPFUL HINTS FROM YOUR INSURANCE COMMISSIONER/FIRE MARSHALL

Did you know you could save money on your homeowner's insurance if you have installed an approved burglar or fire alarm system?

If you have a burglar or fire alarm system, it may be wise to shop for an insurance company offering discounts for people who have installed such systems in their homes.

Also, drivers with safe driving records, or those who have completed a driver safety course may qualify for auto insurance discounts with several companies. Some companies offer lower rates for students with high grades.

Look for discounts or price reductions when shopping for insurance, you may save yourself a substantial amount throughout the course of a year. Remember, if you shop around for insurance you can find the policies and prices that best suit your situation.

POLITICS

Florida To Get First Black Woman Senator

Carrie Meek, 36, soon will become Florida's first Black state Senator since Reconstruction, in an uncontested race for the legislative seat.

The post Meek will occupy was created through redistricting and its constituency is predominantly Black. She had served in the state House for the past three years and is known for her outspoken stance on issues affecting Blacks, women and the poor. She is a graduate of Florida A&M University and worked as a physical education teacher before being elected a state representative.

Georgia Legislators OK Redistricting Strategy

Under pressure from a federal court, the Georgia House voted recently to increase the percentage of Black voters in one Congressional district, but Black legislators said the increase of less than four percentage points is not enough.

Soon afterward, the Senate Reapportionment Committee scrapped the House plan in favor of one offered by Sen. Julian Bond that would increase the Fifth District's Black population to 68.29 percent. Blacks would constitute 54 percent of the registered voters. A federal appeals court ordered state officials to submit new plans for the district because its redrawing in 1981 diluted Black voting strength.

Black Vote Shows Strength In Number In Seven States

As the nation's voting age population reaches almost 170 million this November, Blacks, who comprise about 17 million or 10.5 percent, will hold clout in the capital and seven states.

New York has the largest Black electorate, 1.6 million, followed by California, Texas and Illinois, each with more than one million.

However, the highest percentages of Black voters reside in the District of Columbia with two thirds; Mississippi with 31 percent, South Carolina and Louisiana, 27 percent, and North Carolina with 20 percent.

Blacks far outnumber the nation's Hispanics, a group once predicted as overtaking the minority supremacy. Hispanics now have nine million in the voting age population.

Money Dispute Cuts NBL From Federal Aid List

Ted Hagans

C.J. Patterson

A dispute over misuse of a half million dollars has finally forced the National Business League to do without federal assistance.

The nation's oldest and largest Black business organization, founded in 1900 by Booker T. Washington, has been ruled ineligible to receive additional federal funds by officials of the Commerce Dept.'s Minority Business Development Agency in Washington. An audit recommended that MBDA "hold up or deny any NBL requests to extend or renew their programs."

The government agency cited a series of accounting system deficiencies, excessive funding requests and questionable costs.

This latest barrier has damaged the unity of minority enterprise and added fuel to the argument that the Reagan administration favors Hispanics over Blacks in the economic field.

NBL President Ted Hagans admitted that there was a misunderstanding between NBL and the government, but described it as one that could be worked out.

GETTING THE CARE YOU NEED

When you become pregnant, your baby develops quickly: All the major organs are formed during the first 12 weeks of life.

During this important early time--and all the way through your pregnancy--you own good health is vital to your baby's healthy growth. That's why you should see a doctor or visit a clinic as soon as you think you may be pregnant, and then get regular followup medical care.

During your first visit, your doctor will give you a thorough physical examination and have laboratory tests done to check for any possible hidden problems. He or she will also question you about your health history-especially about any chronic illnesses, such as high blood pressure or diabetes, that might need special attention.

The doctor will carefully explain the changes that are happening in your body and how you can expect to feel. You should ask for a care plan covering what you eat, how much you should rest and exercise, and other things you can do to work for a safe delivery and a healthy baby.

PROTECTING YOUR BABY AND YOURSELF.

If you follow these simple rules while you're pregnant, you'll have the very best insurance you can get to protect yourself and the baby within you:

See your doctor early, and keep all your followup appointmentt. Always ask any questions you may have.

Follow your doctor's advice.

Take care of yourself. Eat properly; drink enough of the right kinds of fluids; get the recommended amounts of rest and exercise.

Stay away from substances that can hurt you and your baby -alcohol; cigarettes; drugs or medicines your doctor didn't precribe.

Remember that your baby deserves a healthy start in life. And a healthy mother.

Biting Back

Senator Steve Symms

Bessie Beats the Bureaucrats

"A government that is big enough to give you all you want is big enough to take it all away."

The truth of Senator Goldwater's classic definition of big government has seldom been demonstrated more dramatically than it was in a case handled recently through my office in Boise.

The story, which came to my attention as the result of a letter-to-the-editor in a local paper and a visit from its author, is a sad commentary on our cold and rigid bureaucracy. But thanks to the persistence of an 89-year-old constituent who was willing to fight for her rights, with the assistance of my staff, the story has a happy ending.

Here's what happened.

Three months ago, Bessie Dewey of Nampa donated $1 to a youngster in the neighborhood selling raffle tickets for a school carnival. As luck would have it, she won the prize: a gift certificate for $100 worth of groceries.

Goodness knows, she could use it, since she supports herself on a small income of $264 a month from Social Security SSI payments.

But her good luck turned into a nightmare, threatening her livelihood, when she voluntarily reported her $100 prize to the Social Security Administration. Why did she report it? "Because I've always been honest," she explained.

You'd think, as I did, that if the feds responded at all, it would be to thank her for being so forthright and to tell her that it isn't really necessary for Uncle Sam to know when a senior citizen wins a prize at a school carnival.

That, of course, would require more common sense than you can expect these days in our bloated federal bureaucracy.

Instead, the lady received not one but two letters from Social Security officials, both of them informing her that because she had won $100 worth of food in a raffle, she would lose -- get this -- more than $100 in monthly SSI payments.

The first letter, from the local Social Security office, told her that her SSI payments for the months of May and June (which she had already received) had been reduced by $160.

"Please refund the overpayment of $160 immediately," the letter demanded. "Make your check or money order payable to the Social Security Administration. . . and mail it in the enclosed envelope."

The second letter, which came from Washington, told her that, starting in July, her monthly SSI payments would be reduced by $80. "Because your income has changed, we have refigured the amount of payment due you," the letter said, adding that the decision to reduce her benefits was based on her "unearned income" (the groceries she won) in the month of April.

The Washington bureaucrats, in other words, were going to take away $80 a month -- or almost $1,000 a year -- because she had won $100 worth of food in the neighbor girl's school raffle!

Can you believe that?

Well, you'd better believe that Bessie Dewey was pretty upset when she got those letters telling her that her government was going to punish her for being lucky -- and honest.

Fortunately, there's a happy ending to this incredible story. When it came to my attention, we went to bat for Bessie. After a series of phone calls and letters, she was told to disregard notices from Washington threatening to reduce her benefits in the future. Then she was told she would have to refund "only" $80, not $160. Finally, thanks to the cooperation of Social Security officials in Caldwell, we were able to get all of the penalties waived.

Several weeks ago, when I visited her in Nampa, Bessie told me she had just received her monthly SSI check for the full amount -- plus a $19 cost-of-living bonus -- so everything is now okay and she is happy.

The case has been closed, but as a footnote, she deserves the Symms "Golden Apple Award" for sticking to her guns. As for the faceless bureaucrats who caused her so much grief, they get my "Bad Apple Award" of the month for Big Brotherism.

Senator Symms is a Republican from Idaho.

TICOR JOINS BLACK CHAMBER

OAKLAND – The Title Insurance and Trust Company, a Ticot Company under Southern Pacific, one of the world's largest companies, has joined the Northern California Black Chamber of Commerce (NCBCC) as a corporate member.

The Title Insurance and Trust Company has become a part of a growing number of corporate members in NCBCC. Major corporations who are also corporate members of the Black Chamber group include the Bank of California, PG&E and Clorox.

The Northern California Black Chamber of Commerce was organized as a non-profit organization in 1974. Its goals are to advance the general welfare and prosperity of the Oakland area.

NCBCC's continuous promotion of the nearly completed Convention Center will be a catalyst in developing economic, civic, commercial, industrial and educational interest in the area. NCBCC is oriented toward this commitment with a strong desire to improve the conditions of Black businesses in the area.

The Black Chamber is funded by the City of Oakland to tap the $1 million Black convention and tourism market.

NCBCC has already booked four major conventions for the new Oakland convention center with membership in excess of 800. The Oakland Convention Center and the Hyatt Regency Hotel are set to open in early 1983.

NORTHWEST TREK,

CLOSE ENCOUNTERS AT NORTHWEST TREK

Late summer and early fall is mating season at Northwest Trek Wildlife Park for many of the herd animals in the Park. The rut, as this season is also known, is a time of clashing horns and antlers, poses of bravado and threatening stances.

Much to the surprise of people on tour, the bull at times challenges the tram, charging but stopping several yards away. Later in fall, visitors can observe the unusual antics of bighorn sheep, elk and moose as they begin their breeding season.

The park is open daily at 10 am. through October 31. Tram tours are conducted hourly by naturalists from 10 am. to 6 pm. through September 6 and at 11 am, 1 pm. and 3 pm from Septemb r 7 to October 30.
